

An adversary from the past asks Konstantin Boryakov for a favour – “break into a facility designed to protect $200 million in cash and steal an item far more valuable. Theft, murder, mayhem and a sprinkling of deception await him.” Read the novels Ken Bruen loves! All Konstantin Boryakov wants is a quiet life. In Margate. But someone is looking for him, someone who will do whatever they can to get the ex-KGB agent’s attention. Enter Violet, a woman with a penchant for throwing people who upset her out of windows. And Campari. Reluctantly, Konstantin finds himself building a team to pull off a heist – “breaking into a high security cash deposit facility with a hot line to the police. But he’s not to take money, what he’s after is a case, containing something apparently even more precious than the $200 million in notes that’s held behind razor wire defences. The first member of Konstantin’s team is testosterone loaded prison officer David Lockwood, a man with debts to pay, and not to society. The pair break Sticky Mickey, a data mining expert, out of prison. With the arrival of strong man Lawson the team is seemingly complete, but when Lawson winds up dead, the result of an inconvenient accident, Konstantin is wary, even more so when Lawson’s void is filled by the volatile Violet. Getting into the facility was the easy step and Lawson just the first to die. Everyone connected with the heist, it seems, is a target and Konstantin must go back to the beginning to find out who’s behind it all before he winds up with a bullet in the heart. Konstantin Boryakov is done with the past, but seemingly, it’s not done with him.” Praise for Keith Nixon’s Work – Keith Nixon is the new fresh voice we so desperately need in these days of dreadful Fifty shades of blandness.” Ken Bruen - Author of Blitz, London Boulevard & Priest – “Lean, mean and gritty, with writing as sharp as a razor cut. Keith Nixon serves up a – Konstantin Kocktail” with equal parts Vodka to Vodka, that’ll hit you just where it’s needed.” Matt Hilton - Author of the Joe Hunter thrillers – “Keith Nixon gets better with each new book. Among a promising crop of new writers he’s the one to watch. A rare and diverse talent who has the ability to surprise and impress ... sometimes in the same sentence.” Tony Black, author of The Last Tiger and The Inglorious Dead – “Nixon writes hard-hitting fiction, with a dash of humour, a cast of great characters, and a dollop of violence. Konstantin is a fantastic creation.” Luca Veste, author of Dead Gone and The Dying Place – “If you told me that Konstantin put the K in KGB, I wouldn’t even argue. This character is a badass of the highest calibre.” Gerard Brennan, author of Undercover – “Russian Roulette feels like Snatch meets a steampunk Sherlock Holmes. Nixon continues the story of Russian-born Konstantin, anti-hero for the modern age. Like Marlowe before him, Konstantin has a penchant for finding trouble and an unflinching sense of morality to get him out of it.” Joe Clifford, author of Lamentation and Junkie Love – “Nixon delivers a series of hard-edged twists and turns that will leave you reeling and turning the pages in what is an unforgettable story.” Richard Godwin, author of Meaningful Conversations and One Lost Summer – “Hardboiled action and sharp, gritty humour. Highly recommended.” Paul D. Brazill, author of Guns Of Brixton and A Case Of Noir – “This is what noir is all about. Masterful, deadly and powerful.” Les Edgerton, author of The Rapist & The Bitch – “If you thought – ‘The Fix’ was a blast of black comedy, you ain’t seen nothing yet.” Nick Quantrill, author of The Late Greats – “Tight, punchy with a distinct voice.” Crimesquad
